

About the authors

Syarhiei Alfer – lawyer, member of the Belorussian Centre for Constitutionalism and Comparative Legal Studies social organisation.

Zmitsier Babitski – economist, staff member of the Privatisation and Management Institute, participated in the Stefan Batory Foundation’s scholarship programme for Belorussian students.

Viktar Charnau – political scientist, director of the Open Society Foundation.

Valer Dashkievich – independent analyst, economist.

Alyaksandr Hatouski – economist, participated in the Stefan Batory Foundation’s internship programme for young Belorussian academics.

Uladzimer Kalupaieu – economist, participated in the Stefan Batory Foundation’s internship programme for young Belorussian academics.

Miraslau Kobasa – lawyer, member of the Lev Sapieha Foundation.

Svyatlana Krupnik – educational sociologist, staff member of the Postgraduate Education Academy.

Andriei Lyakhovich – political scientist, head of the Political Education Centre social organisation.

Juras Lihtarovich – political scientist, member of the Belorussian Schumann Association.

Uladzimer Matskievich – philosopher, lecturer at the Belorussian College.

Piotra Natchyk – political scientist, member of the Political Education Centre social organisation.

Alyksandr Palonnikau – staff member of the Centre for Education Development Issues, Belorussian State University.

Mikhail Pastukhou – specialist in legal studies, head of the Legal Defence Centre of the Belorussian Journalists' Association, formerly of the Constitutional Court.

Mikhas Pliska – political scientist, specialist in legal studies, editor-in-chief of 'Open Society', lecturer at the Parliamentarism and Entrepreneurship Institute.

Vital Silitski – PhD in political science, economist, former lecturer at the Private European Humanistic University in Minsk – dismissed from the faculty for his political views.

Andrei Shabunia – economist, lecturer at the State Belorussian Technical University, participated in the Stefan Batory Foundation's internship programme for young Belorussian academics.

Uladzimer Valetka – economist, lecturer at the State Belorussian Technical University, participated in the Stefan Batory Foundation's internship programme for young Belorussian academics.

Andrei Yekadumau – philosopher, lecturer in philosophy and logic at the Belorussian State University.

Marina Zahorskaia – journalist with the 'Belorussian Commercial Newspaper'.

Mikhal Zaleski – op-ed writer, lecturer at the faculty of international economic relations of the Belorussian State University.

Andriei Zavadski – lawyer, member of the Lev Sapieha Foundation.

Maksim Zhbankou – cultural scientist, film critic, lecturer at the Belorussian College.